

Parents

Take a stand for positive, safe and fun sports for kids by joining the Parents Association for Youth Sports

Be prepared • Stay informed • Get involved

The Parents Association for Youth Sports is an education and membership program that supports youth sports parents just like you. Parents first participate in a 40-minute video course, hosted by ESPN SportsCenter anchor Chris McKendry, covering topics such as safety, injury prevention, sportsmanship, behavior, nutrition, hydration, plus more. After completing the course and signing the PAYS Code of Ethics pledge, parents gain access to their PAYS member benefits:

- Exclusive online member area: Access information and resources about youth sports safety, parenting and news
- Supplemental trainings: Free optional courses including concussion awareness, bullying prevention and protection against child abuse
- Let's Talk Sports program: An online, interactive activity for parents and kids to discover the valuable life skills sports participation has to offer
- Monthly sports parent e-newsletters featuring advice to get the most out of your family's youth sports experience

All for just $5
per family

Get involved today and help make your child's sports experience more enjoyable and positive!
